We are pleased to announce that Katherine Leibowitz will be giving a talk on “How COVID-19 Is Changing Clinical Trial Agreements” at the upcoming MAGI Clinical Research Cloud Conference 2020. The virtual event runs from June 22 – July 2, 2020. We have previously written about the impact of COVID-19 on clinical trial agreements.

Katherine’s session is on July 2nd from 1 – 2 p.m. and will include both the sponsor and site perspectives. The last 20 minutes will be a live Q&A session during which she and her co-presenter, Conor Flynn from SUNY Buffalo, can answer your questions about these important issues directly.

Katherine will also be chairing the session on “CTAs for Investigator-Initiated Trials” and will moderate the Q&A. The investigator-initiated trials session is on June 22nd from 4 – 5 p.m.

This is MAGI’S first virtual event, and it will be a shortened version of the cancelled Philadelphia conference from April (where Katherine was also supposed to speak). You can access the program agenda here.
